

Hear Dr. Wiley Saturday Afternoon At The Assembly

SWEARS HUSBAND TRIED TO KILL HER

Mrs. Grace Testifies That Revolver Was Fired During Struggle.

WAS IN THE MAN'S HANDS

Woman on Trial in Atlanta for Attempted Murder of Husband Tells Graphic Story of Events Leading Up to Shooting.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Opie Grace told the jury here how her young husband, Eugene Grace, scion of an aristocratic Georgia family, received the bullet wound that paralyzed him in their Atlanta home on the fifth of last March.

Her first words on the stand were: "Gentlemen, I am innocent. I did not shoot my husband, and he knows it," indicating with a nod of the head towards her husband, who lay on a stretcher near the witness stand.

Says Husband Shot Himself. Mrs. Grace then declared her husband had shot himself during a struggle with her, following a quarrel over another woman on whom Mrs. Grace alleged her husband had been spending her money.

With flushed face, and hands trembling, Mrs. Grace spoke in a clear, but low voice, declaring that her husband had tried to kill her several times. Once, she said, he tried to drown her; again, he stabbed her, and finally, the day he was shot, he seized a pistol and in the struggle that followed he wounded himself.

Mrs. Grace's statement was very long. The salient features follow:

"I did not shoot Mr. Grace, and he knows it, as God is my judge, that is the solemn truth. Mr. Grace and I took an oath over the Bible that we would never tell how this trouble happened, and not until after I was indicted did I even tell my attorneys. Married in New Orleans.

"It was in New Orleans we were married the second time.

"When we came to Atlanta and stopped at the Piedmont an old sweetheart of his, he said, called him up to congratulate him on his marriage."

After settling in Atlanta, where Mrs. Grace established her husband in business, she says that Grace became worse than ever with women. Finally, just before the shooting, Grace's business got in a bad way and he became clamorous for money. At last he persuaded Mrs. Grace to give him power of attorney to sell her house in Philadelphia, and also to sell some securities she owned. Then came the day of the shooting. Mrs. Grace said:

Describes Shooting. "Mr. Grace was lying on the bed. His coat was hanging—just behind where he was lying, and I walked toward the coat and took out of his pocket the power of attorney, along with some other papers which were in the coat.

"It was my intention to throw the power of attorney into the fire, and as soon as he saw what I was doing he sprang out of bed and grabbed my left wrist with his right hand and my right wrist in his left hand. We struggled and he backed me over against the bureau and twisted my left hand so hard that I dropped the papers on the floor.

Secures Revolver.

"Then he let go of that hand and grabbed my throat with his right and he reached in a small drawer in the bureau and took out his revolver. He was cursing in a low, husky voice, and his face was so distorted with rage that I was very badly scared, and when he made a motion to hit me with the pistol and then tried to shoot me I threw all my weight and strength against him, grabbed him around the arms, backed him over to the bed, and as soon as his legs came in contact with the bed he fell over backward, with me on top of him, and I was pushing, pulling and shoving and doing all in my power to keep him from hitting me with the pistol or shooting me, when suddenly the pistol went off and I screamed and jumped up.

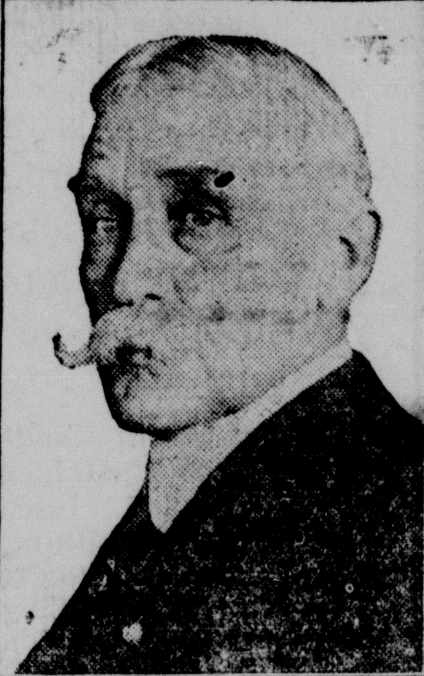

"At first I thought I was shot, and then, when I did not feel that I was, I threw my arms around his neck and said: 'Oh, Gene, what have you done? Are you hurt?'

"He said: 'No, I am not hurt; but for God's sake don't make so much noise, or you will have the entire neighborhood in here. I have only a scratch; it don't amount to a damn.'"

HARRY WHITE RESIGNS.

Harry A. White, who has been connected with a shoe firm in Minneapolis for some time and who was formerly with the Watson Plummer shoe company in Dixon, has resigned his position with the northern company.

GEN. GEORGE R. SMITH

General Smith, the new paymaster general of the army, is a native of New York and was graduated from the military academy in 1875.

OFFICIAL LOCATES HERE.

H. H. Heinze, who has been appointed general storekeeper for the Illinois Northern Utilities company, is here making arrangements to make this city his permanent home. He is now seeking a desirable residence and when these arrangements have been perfected, will move his family to Dixon.

Mr. Heinze's position as storekeeper is rather important, for he has supervision over every store room owned by the big company, of which there are 23, and his big warehouse which is to be built in Dixon, will supply all materials, equipment, etc., used in all of the company's stations, which number 42.

THE MILWAUKEE FIRE.

Those who attended the Princess theatre Wednesday evening were interested greatly in the views of the Milwaukee fire, which conflagration destroyed the music houses of L. E. McGreal and Miss Gertrude Gannon.

POLICE CHANGE SHIFTS.

The regular monthly change of the hours of the police force took place at noon yesterday. Officer John Winters has been succeeded on the day shift by Officer Ed Whetstone.

STRETCH CABLE NEXT WEEK. The work of preparing the cable and accouterments to be stretched across the river is progressing swiftly and the committee expects to be able to stretch the big wire early the coming week. It will be securely anchored at each side of the river and numerous floats will be suspended from it.

GOOD MUSIC TOMORROW.

The Telegraph tomorrow will publish one of its very best musical numbers, Henschel's "Full Many a Dream," as sung by Mildred Hoyte in the Babes in Toyland Co. The music of this song is especially melodious and harmonious and the beauty of the lyric, which is from the German, is strikingly appealing.

ADVERTISING BARBECUE.

The house committee of the Elks, in whose charge the arrangements for the Labor day barbecue have been placed, has commenced advertising the big event with lodges in this vicinity and the responses that have been received insure an exceptionally large attendance on the big day.

N. W. PHONE LINE PROGRESSING.

The telephone gang of the Northwestern is completing the building of the phone line from Nachusa to Dixon and it is anticipated no trouble will be experienced in getting the line built and in operation from Chicago to the Mississippi by fall. The phones are to be used for dispatching purposes.

SUBMITTED TO OPERATION.

Mrs. Fred Barnes of Oregon submitted to an operation at the Dixon hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Chas. Plein spent Wednesday in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wheat and Miss Bertha Lipp of Sterling were here last evening.

The members of the Congregational church are requested to meet at the church tonight at 7:30 sharp.

DR. HOOVER SPOKE ON "THE NEW RACE"

PRESIDENT OF CARTHAGE COLLEGE WAS ATTRACTION AT ASSEMBLY TODAY.

METROPOLITAN LADIES LAST CONCERT

The Popular Entertainers Will Close Their Engagement This Evening.

This was a beautiful day to spend at the Assembly. This is one reason why Dr. H. D. Hoover, president of Carthage College, was greeted by such a large audience. The doctor is one of the best platform speakers of the day, and a profound student. His subject was, "The New Race."

Closing Concert.

This evening at 8 o'clock the Metropolitan Ladies' Orchestra will play their closing concert, and if there are any who have not heard them, tonight will be their last opportunity, this session of the Assembly.

Band Concerts Tomorrow.

The Marine band will play two concerts tomorrow, one at 1:30 and the store at 7 p. m.

New Singer.

Miss Marguerite Farrell of Oregon will sing solo Saturday evening, just before the illustrated lecture by Dr. Davidson. A large number of her Oregon friends will attend tomorrow evening.

Ex-Gov. Glenn of North Carolina will lecture Sunday afternoon, and will not disappoint.

W. Wiley Saturday.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Washington, D. C., one of the world's greatest chemists, for many years head chemist for the department of Agriculture, will deliver the principal address at the Assembly Saturday afternoon. He is known as the Pure Food Man, and pure food will be his subject.

Dr. Wiley comes here from DeKalb at noon, and it is hoped that he will be given a big reception. He knows a great deal about food, pure and impure, and is willing, for a price, to be sure, to tell what he knows about food. Dr. Wiley is not a great orator but he can talk in a manner to be understood, and the people will appreciate what he says. Don't think that Dr. Wiley is not a big man in his line of work. What Roosevelt is in politics, Wiley is in the field of chemistry. He is known, not only in America, but all over the world.

Every man and woman should make an effort to hear Dr. Wiley on Saturday afternoon.

Saxophone Duet.

Just before the address of Dr. Wiley, Katherine and Ruth Miller will favor the audience with a saxophone duet.

The Marine band will play a half hour concert Saturday afternoon, beginning at 1:30.

Bible Conference.

Rev. Howard, Mrs. Baldwin and Miss Anna E. Sanford, Guntur, India, will address the Bible conference Saturday forenoon. Miss Sanford will use as her subject, "Seventy Years of India Missionary Work."

Miller at Round Table.

"Importance of Consolidation of Country Schools" will be the subject discussed by County Superintendent of Schools L. W. Miller at the Round Table meeting Saturday afternoon. At 7 o'clock Saturday evening the Marine band will play a half-hour concert.

Saturday evening Dr. W. L. Davidson will give an illustrated lecture. Before the lecture Miss Benkert will sing a solo.

Ex-Gov. Glenn Sunday.

Ex-Gov. Glenn of North Carolina will deliver his great lecture, "The Great National Remedy for Evil," on Sunday afternoon.

Strickland Gillilan, humorist, was greeted at the Assembly last evening by the largest audience of the season. For nearly two hours he kept his auditors interested and all departed for home at the close of the lecture feeling that the evening was well spent.

Mr. Gillilan has a message which he delivers from the humorist's standpoint. His audience was new to him. It was his first appearance in Dixon and he made good. The audience remained until the last word ones.

Gillilan's lecture is principally humor, wholesome humor, but here and there in his address are little sermons which, when studied carefully, tend to make mankind better. He carried his auditors back to the days of the farm, boyhood days. He did not forget to tell of the family group, an incident in all our lives which, after we have grown up, brings to our minds pleasant memories of the old days.

His intense love for children was shown in his lecture. His poems of child life were pathetic and humorous.

Every poem recited was his own. He is a poet as well as humorist. Parts of his message will cling to his auditors for some time to come.

On the whole Strickland Gillilan pleased a Dixon audience, and that is saying a great deal, for Dixon audiences are critical.

It is hoped that Mr. Gillilan will return.

Reese Gets Medal.

Merl W. Reese of Davenport won the Diamond Medal contest at the Assembly yesterday, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., with a dramatic interpretation of "The Prisoner's Soliloquy."

This young man, a student at the University of Chicago, has made an excellent record not only in oratorical work, but in the newspaper business. He has done reportorial work for the Chicago Evening Post and is an enthusiast in journalism though his ultimate ambition is the practice of law.

He entered heart and soul into the interpretation of his part and was vigorously applauded for the fine work. His piece was a sad one, it being the soliloquy of a young man sitting in his cell awaiting the hour of his execution. He bemoans his lost youth and curses the liquor which caused his downfall.

The other contestants also did excellent work and as Miss Brehm, who presided, said, it takes six to win the medal but only one can wear it.

RENUMBER METERS.

The Illinois Northern Utilities Co. is having a thorough canvass of the city made to determine the number of electric lights in use and the number of meters. The company is also having all meters numbered. The Sterling meters are numbered first, the Dixon meters taking up where the Sterling meters discontinue and the Amboy meters after the local ones.

FRED MERROW SUES WIFE FOR DIVORCE

AMBOY MAN FILES SUIT TODAY—JOHN SUMMERS NAMED AS CORRESPONDENT.

Through his attorneys, Trusdell, Smith & Leach, Fred Merrow of Amboy has filed suit for divorce from his wife, Maude F. Merrow, in the Lee county circuit court, charging a statutory offense and naming John Summers as co-respondent. In his bill Merrow states that he was married to Maude F. Burger, Sept. 5th, 1906, that his wife has been guilty of indiscretions with Summers many times, and that on Aug. 8, 1911, she and Summers went to California for a trip. He further states that he had to cook his own meals during the last six months he lived with her.

ROEBERS RAID TOWN OF LYNDON

THIEVES OBTAIN CONSIDERABLE FROM POSTOFFICE, SALOON AND DEPOT.

Lyndon, Ill., Aug. 2.—Special Telegraph—Robbers broke into the postoffice here last night and secured $35 worth of stamps and $3 in cash. They then went to the Maxfield saloon and forced an entrance, securing some small change and ended by breaking into the Burlington depot where they secured a small sum of money. There are no clues.

Ed. Note—A dispatch on the above robbery states that $150 in stamps was taken from the postoffice in Lyndon, $25 from the depot and several hundred from the business houses of the city.

The former report is doubtless correct, for the exaggerated one came from Sterling, via Chicago and probably originated from the source so many of those Sterling fairy tales spring from.

WEATHER BULLETIN.

MRS. HUNTINGTON WILSON

Mrs. Wilson, wife of the assistant secretary of state, is spending the summer at Newport, her husband also being there. Indeed, she never leaves home unless Mr. Wilson accompanies her. Mrs. Wilson is one of the most admired young matrons in Washington.

NAME NEW PARTY FOR WASHINGTON

Pennsylvania Progressives Pre-empt Title for the Roosevelt Ticket.

T. R. BARS NEGRO DELEGATES

Third Party Convention of Indiana Nominates Beveridge for Governor and Landis for Second Place—Candidates for All Offices.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 2.—Stealing a march on the opposition, which has patented for Pennsylvania every conceivable name likely to be adopted by the third party, the Roosevelt forces pre-empted for all offices throughout Pennsylvania the name "Washington party," under which the Progressive fight will be conducted in November.

Roosevelt Bars Negroes.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 2.—The perplexing problem of the negro in the new third party is to be handled by Colonel Roosevelt in a bold way, in a formal statement completed by him for dissemination tomorrow.

The ex-president takes a definite stand on these two points:

1. No negro representation is to be allowed at the third party convention from the south.
2. No negroes are to enter the third party as workers in the south after the convention, unless they show themselves to be a different type from those that now constitute the southern colored working forces of the Republican party.

Indians Name Ticket.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 2.—The Progressive state convention here nominated the following ticket:

Governor—Albert J. Beveridge of Indianapolis.
Lieutenant governor—Frederick Landis of Logansport.
Secretary of state—L. H. Mace, Scottsburg.

Auditor of state—Harvey C. Cushman, Washington.
Treasurer of state—B. B. Baker, Monticello.

Attorney general—Clifford F. Jackson, Huntington.
Superintendent of public instruction—Charles E. Spaulding of Winamac.
State statistician—Thaddeus M. Moore of Madison county.

Reporter of supreme court—Frank R. Miller of Clinton.
Judge of supreme court, First district—J. B. Wilson of Bloomington.
Judge of supreme court, Fourth district—William A. Bond of Richmond.
Judge of appellate court, First district—Miner F. Pate of Bloomfield.

Platform for County Option. The platform declares for everything that has been preached as "progressive" for years, and goes even farther, and is radical in some respects.

Colorado Ticket Named.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 2.—Progressives from 23 Colorado counties in convention here named 12 delegates to the Chicago convention, with half a vote each, and placed a full state ticket in the field, headed by C. P. Costigan for governor. Resolutions were adopted declaring that machine thefts of the Colorado governorship in 1906 and the Denver mayoralty when Speer was elected had paved the way for the "theft for Taft of the presidential nomination."

Program a Feature.

A feature of the Dixon picnic was the program which followed the dinner. With Prof. C. E. Krinbill in charge, some good music was assured, and of course "Illinois" was the first song to be sung. Mrs. C. H. Sarwine gave a very interesting address which linked Dixon and Southern California in reminiscent incidents. She was followed by Mrs. D. A. R. King (formerly Miss Della Robinson) who has lost none of her skill as a reader. She responded to endorse with an original selection. Several members of the society responded to the call for short talks.

"Dixon on the Rock"

Prof. Krinbill had composed a song, "Dixon on the Rock," which was sung to the tune of "Maryland, My Maryland," to the great delight of all. The words of the song are:

Oh Illinois, fair Illinois,
To think of thee brings peace and joy.
We love thy fields of golden grain;
Thy wooded hills and fertile plain,
Beside Rock river's winding stream
We used to sit and think and dream
Of broad Pacific's ceaseless roar,
By California's golden shore.
From dear old Dixon we have come,
And settled in our western home,
Where luscious fruit abundant grows
And deserts blossom like the rose.
Where man may reap with earnest toil
The richest treasures from the soil;
Then let each heart be glad and gay
And sing of Dixon far away.
What tho' our heads be tinged with gray,
Let joy and pleasures now hold sway,
No time for sadness or repine
In this delightful, sunny clime.
We talk of things both new and old,
Of summer's heat and winter's cold;
We'll not forget with time's tick-tock
The dear old Dixon on the Rock.

DIXONITES PICNIC IN THE FAR WEST

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED FORMER RESIDENTS MET FOR THE DAY.

WENT THRU EXCELLENT PROGRAM

Dixon, Illinois, Association of Southern California Met in Sycamore Grove for Annual Picnic—Story is Told by a Former Editor of The Telegraph.

(By Ernest H. Moore)

Los Angeles, Cal., July 27. The Dixon Home Coming had a lively echo in far away California today when nearly two hundred former residents of Dixon gathered in Sycamore Grove, one of the attractive parks in Los Angeles, for the third annual picnic of Dixon, Illinois, Association of Southern California. The skies were clear and the day was typical of summer in this section, with the temperature between 75 and 80. Each succeeding picnic finds new recruits for the association and there are many happy surprises and the renewing of almost forgotten acquaintances.

When all had gathered about the tables this noon and the ladies of the refreshment committee were passing the well laden plates of good things to eat, it was difficult not to believe that the merry crowd was not in a grove near Dixon. While each recalled happy memories of his residence in Dixon, and will never forget the old town, all are delighted with their new home and are enthusiastic boosters for Southern California, its enterprise, its mild climate and abundance of fruits and flowers. The proximity of the beaches and the mountains are a never ending delight to the nature lover, for an hour's ride on the swift-running electric cars will carry one to either attraction. Perfect automobile roads lead from the city in every direction, and the use to which they are put is shown by the fact that there are 25,000 automobiles in Los Angeles alone. No other state except New York has so many autos as California.

Park Seats to Make Money.

San Jose, Cal., is trying in its park a bench devised by E. W. Allen for use in connection with the free seats. It is a swinging seat so arranged that until a nickel is deposited in a slot, the back is tilted forward and the seat downward, so that it can not be used. A coin releases it, however, and provides a rocking seat for two persons. As soon as they leave the seat swings back to its former position, and requires another nickel to unlock it. In sunny places the bench is placed under a canopy. The inventor believes that on Sundays and other times, when there are unusual crowds in the park, many people will be willing to spend a nickel for a comfortable seat for their exclusive use.—The Survey.

The Time of Her Life.

The new colored domestic, fresh from Kentucky, took her first "Thursday afternoon off" and failed to return to prepare the seven o'clock dinner for the family. Next morning she reappeared rather "donsie." "Why, Sibbie," said the lady of the house, "you look sick. What is the matter?" "Yes'm, I done been sick, awful sick, but it was wuth it. Dat dollah you given me, I spent every cent of it an' I done had de time of my life. What I done with it? Well, missus, I tell de truf an' no more'n de truf. I bought ten glasses of soda and went to ten of dose movable pictuh shows. My, my, one can't have no sich time in Kalntucky."—Indianapolis News.

NERVE OF NEW YORK WOMAN

Remarkable Display of "Cheek" by Mistress of Doggie Who Was Getting an Outing.

I think there is a particular brand of "cheek" otherwise known as "nerve," among the women of New York, writes an observer. It's the calmest, coolest kind, almost unbelievable. It's so egotistic, and so stupid that it's amusing. Here's an instance, and I assure you it's no fairy tale. I was in a big house furnishing establishment, and in came a woman with a little dog. She said she didn't know just what she wanted, but she'd like to go through the shop. They said all right, and a clerk took her round. I followed along. The woman priced a few things, looked casually at others and finally made ready to leave.

"I like your shop very much," she said, "and I'll come again. It's an outing for doggie. Good-by!"

"An outing for doggie!" gasped the clerk, starting to follow her.

"Yes. He's been smelling the varnish. He simply loves varnish. I'll bring him again. Good-by!"

Should she be in jail or in a lunatic asylum?

Why Look Older Than You Are?

The gentleman to the right of the reader (sketched from life) is wearing old style or pasted double-vision lenses. The lines of the reading wafers are noticeably prominent and he has difficulty in adjusting his eyes to the lenses. The cement used to join the two lenses has become clouded and has made his glasses misty. The two figures to the left (sketched from life) are wearing Kryptok double-vision lenses. There are no seams on these glasses, because the reading lenses are fused invisibly within the distance lenses. These latter two persons are at ease, look dignified and comfortable.

IF YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN those wonderful far and near glasses and are wearing two pair of glasses or the old fashioned pasted bifocal ones, you will be under no obligation if you call and let me explain these wonderful lenses. You will wonder how you ever got along without them. Seeing is believing. Won't you let me show you?

Quite Some Crop.

Bill Wilcox, the Chicago board of trade operator who assisted at the C. P. Herriek office in this city during the vacation of Charles Anderson, was riding in an automobile between here and Sterling one afternoon last week, and being an operator he was greatly interested in the growing crops. He viewed them all carefully as the motor car buzzed along.

Suddenly his attention was drawn to a field in which were hundreds of bright purple blossoms. And the plants on which these blossoms grew were exceptionally bright. Turning to his companion in the rear seat Bill remarked:

"There's the finest field of clover I've seen."

"Clover," returned his companion, "why you dandy, that ain't clover there are Canadian thistles."

Whereupon William relapsed into a painful silence.

Goose Hollow Dope.

Ignatius Coffin, who in years to come promises to be a rival of Luther Burbank, is at present working on something which, if it succeeds, will make him as famous as Jos. Stables, the Dixon gardener, who perfected the buttermilk plant and who devised the self-irrigating potatoes by crossing them with onions.

Mr. Coffin is trying to grow a rectangular watermelon. He has noticed for a number of years that people have more or less trouble in carrying watermelons from the stores to their homes, inasmuch as they (the melons) are of awkward shape and quite slippery. It is a well known fact that after a watermelon has collided with a cement sidewalk its usefulness may be said to be over. Mr. Coffin's watermelon will be long and will have square corners, one of which will fit into the bent elbow. He expects to have his melon growing and on the market by 1930. If nothing untoward happens.

Electors Will Remain on Kansas Republican Ticket.

U. S. Supreme Court Sitting at New York so Decides—Writ of Error Still Pending.

New York, Aug. 2.—The United States Supreme court, sitting in the post office building in this city, handed down a ruling here in the famous Kansas electoral tangle that was halled with joy by the Roosevelt forces.

Justices Pitney and Van Devanter, who comprised the court, decided that the Kansas primaries shall proceed next Tuesday, and that the court would continue to consider the petition for a writ of error, which it refused to issue at this time. This has the effect of leaving the Roosevelt electors on the regular Republican ticket and forcing the Taft men to nominate electors on an independent ticket by petition.

The immediate question at issue was the petition of R. E. Marks and eleven Kansas voters for a writ of error against the Kansas supreme court, which refused to take cognizance of the case because it was political.

THE KINGDOM A PRIZE.

Matthew xiii, 44-53—Aug. 4.

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."—Matthew vi, 33.

TODAY we have further precious lessons from the Great Teacher respecting His Kingdom.

The parable of the "Treasure hid in the Field" is not one of the parables which Jesus expounded. His people, therefore, are left to exercise their judgment of its meaning, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit and the light shed upon it by other Scriptures. Indeed, there might be more than one application of it.

But our preference of thought is that the Great Teacher referred, not to Himself, but to those whom He instructed. By virtue of His own covenant of sacrifice, the Kingdom was already promised to Him, and He, in turn, in the Father's name, was inviting those who had ears to hear, and heart to appreciate, to become members of His Kingdom class.

He recommends that these should view the Kingdom after the illustration—"Seek first the Kingdom and His righteousness." Suppose in their journeying they saw a field for sale at a certain price, and suppose, upon examination, they found it to contain a great treasure. The treasure might consist of very excellent soil, especially suited to their purpose, or of a valuable vein of precious metal, or of money buried centuries ago and forgotten, and not belonging to the owner of the field more than to others who might find it. In such a case any one of ordinary intelligence would be willing to invest everything that he possessed to acquire the title.

So the Master declared to those who heard Him then, and to us who receive His words now, that He has information to give respecting a Great Treasure, a Priceless Treasure, which can be obtained only by the expenditure of great energy and the investment of everything of value. The Great Treasure is the share in the Messianic Kingdom—that by accepting the terms of discipleship we may become not only sons of God, but heirs of God and joint-heirs with Jesus Christ our Lord to His heavenly inheritance.

A Pearl of Great Value.

In the days of our Saviour pearls were amongst the most precious of jewels, and the larger and more nearly perfect the pearl the greater its value. The Great Teacher used this familiar matter as the basis for a lesson on the value of the Kingdom. The Merchant of the Parable found a Pearl so superior in every respect that he considered it cheap to give everything that he possessed to become its owner.

This, said the Master, illustrates the value of the Kingdom, with its glory, honor and immortality, which I am inviting an elect, saintly little flock to share with Me. Those who prize it properly will show their appreciation by the amount they will be willing to pay for it. Whether a man be wealthy or poor, learned or ignorant, influential or otherwise, the cost of this Kingdom Pearl will be his all.

The wealthiest or most talented person in the world could not obtain a share in that Kingdom if he kept back one atom of his possessions; the price of the Kingdom is self-sacrifice, even unto death, and nothing less will secure it. Nor would any sacrifice that we could make secure a share in this Kingdom for us, except as our sacrifice should first be made acceptable in God's sight through the precious merit of our Redeemer's sacrifice.

The Parable of the Fish Net. We are not to think of the Kingdom as a net, but that the embryo Kingdom resembles a fishing experience with a net, in which were gathered all kinds of fish. This is a parable of the embryo Kingdom because it relates to a work done in this Age, in connection with the finding of the "little flock" who will constitute the Kingdom in glory. The Lord during this Age has not been seeking all kinds of people. He has been calling, drawing, especially, and dealing with, only the "elect," only the saintly.

But, incidentally, a variety of other kinds of fish have gotten into the Gospel Net, some from worldly ambitions, some because religious systems are a good matrimonial field, others because of social privileges and standing, others because they would use religion as a cloak for business enterprises, etc.

The parable tells us that "when the net was full it was drawn ashore and the fish sorted. Then the fishing ceased. Who can say that the opportunity for entering the 'net' as one of the true 'fish' of the kind the Lord is seeking may not be almost at an end? Who can say that the Gospel Net, with its full assortment of churchianity of every style, will not soon be drawn ashore that the saintly, the elect, may be gathered into the Kingdom?"

The new company is figuring on changing their power system in Dixon, necessitating new meters for all power users.

A representative of the company visited the Telegraph office this morning and among other propositions of equal attraction to the consumer, they offered to allow $150 on a certain one of our motors when we purchased the new one, but the representative explained that although the company allowed $150 for the motor, they would have to subtract from this sum 10 per cent per year for the past ten years for depreciation.

Let's see—ten times ten per cent is—but then that can't be right. Let's hope they aren't trying to kid us. Anyway, we'll present a beautiful, solid concrete medal to the mathematician who can explain where we get anything on our motor.

We do think they might have allowed us about $1000 instead of the $150. It wouldn't have cost them any more and we would have been able to brag about what a good motor we once owned.

Athletic Events.

There were also athletic events, which interested not only the young people, but in which the older ones also participated and for which substantial prizes were given. Carl A. Mueller was in charge of the sports, and the judges were Chas. A. Wood and Geo. C. Morris.

The services of "Detective" D. S. Lafferty were much in demand in settling disputes, and he was obliged to make a quick get-away after each decision as the surest way to prevent a riot. He was very successful and was able to stop a fight every time by running away.

The winners in the events were:

100 yard dash, boys under 15—1st, Walter Palmer; 2nd, Gale Hawkins.

50 yard dash, girls under 15—1st, Ruth Kimmell; 2nd, Myrtle Ayres.

A neatly printed program was issued for the picnic, and among the advertisements it contained were those of the German American Trust and Savings bank, of which W. E. McVay is vice president and W. B. Johnson assistant cashier; H. J. Kimbell; Alhambra's leading plumber; Morris & Co., the brick building movers, and A. W. Gonnerman company, engineering contractors, all former Dixon people.

The success of these picnics is assured by the activity of the members of the association, among the most active workers being Bert O. Boothby, Harry Crabtree, Clarence Krinbill, Wesley Howell, Harry Kimmell, Frank Morris, Judd Potter and G. E. Krinbill.

A Mid-Winter Meeting.

Plans are being made for a mid-winter meeting to be held in February, when there will doubtless be many Dixon tourists in Los Angeles, and it is hoped that there will be many new faces at this meeting.

Notices of the picnic are sent to all the addresses obtainable of Dixon people in Southern California. Several who could not attend sent letters of regret. The notice overtook Mrs. Dorothy N. Law at Elk Grove, while she was on her way home. Prof. C. O. Scudder and wife wrote that they were just leaving for Portland and could not attend. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Vann sent regrets from Fairfield. Prof. D. Brehaut who formerly taught in Steinmann Institute and is now head of a business college at Pomona, sent his dues for two years. Lew Heckman of Monrovia also sent his dues and regrets.

Some photos of the gathering were taken by R. T. Smith, the official photographer, and will doubtless be interesting.

Large Number There.

A list of the former Dixonites who are now in Southern California, numbering upwards of 185, and 140 of whom attended the annual picnic, which will be interesting to the relatives and friends, follows:

MAJESTIC—CHICAGO.
The bill at the Majestic theatre for the week of August 5th contains even more than the usual number of novelties. Indeed, the Majestic seems determined no matter whether the majority of the competing theatres are put to sleep or not, to maintain the very highest average of novelty and interest; and doubtless it is this policy that has made it such a remarkable success. For this particular week there will be several headline features. Prominent among them is a production made and presented by Daniel Frohman, one of the greatest producing managers of the country, who will offer a dramatic sketch called Detective Keen, a most intense and interesting bit of drama work equating in its 25 minutes a whole evening of average thriller drama. Arthur Hoops, a Chicago man of distinction and who has made his way to the front of the stage in a most creditable manner, will have the leading part in this smart drama and the remainder of the company will be quite up to his level. This playlet has been one of the hits of the season in the few eastern theatres where presented.

Another remarkable effort introducing not only important names but a very interesting comedy satire is called In 1899. Joseph Jefferson, son and namesake of the great comedian and Felice Morris, daughter of the famous comedian, Felix Morris, with their company, will play this remarkably entertaining satire, which is as full of laughs as a nut is of meat.

Still another novelty is Sumiko, a charming Japanese singer, Cedora & Co., the sensational cyclists, The Five Melody Maids and a Man will present songs and piano work, Matthews & Alshayne the comedians, have a routine of funny business that could scarcely be excelled. Ward Bros. are dancers of more than ordinary skill and Cunningham & Marion are acrobatic comedians who give a remarkable exhibition.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Man Who Didn't Care.

It was the first of February when Ackermann's caravan drew into the ancient city of Damascus. That part of the caravan deserted by Mahomed put out for Cairo immediately they struck the regular camel-way. Fortune, George and Ryann were in a pitiable condition, heart and body weary, in rage and tatters. George, now that the haven was assured, dropped his forced buoyancy, his prattle, his jests. He had done all a mortal man could to keep up the spirits of his co-unfortunates; and he saw that, most of the time, he had wasted his talents. Ryann, sulen and morose, often told him to "shut up;" which wasn't exhorting. And Fortune viewed his attempts without sensing them and frequently looked at him without seeing him. Now, all this was not particularly comforting to the man who loved her and was doing what he could to lighten the dreariness of the journey. He made allowances, however; besides suffering unusual privations, Fortune had had a frightful mental shock. A girl of her depth of character could not be expected to rise immediately to the old level. Sometimes, while gathered about the evening fire, he would look up to find her sad eyes staring at him, and it mattered not if he stared in return; a kind of clairvoyance blurred visibilities, for she was generally looking into her garden at Mentone and wondering when this horrible dream would pass. Subjects for conversation were exhausted in no time. Dig as he might, George could find nothing new; and often he recounted the same tale twice of an evening. Sardonic laughter from Ryann.

Ackermann had given them up as hopeless. He was a strong, vain, domineering man, kindly at heart, however, but impatient. When he told a story, he demanded the attention of all; so, when Ryann yawned before his eyes, and George drew pictures in the sand, and the girl fell asleep with her head upon her knees, he drew off abruptly and left them to their own devices. He had crossed and recrossed the silences so often that he was no longer capable of judging accurately another man's mental processes. That they had had a strange and numbing experience he readily understood; but now that they were out of duress and headed for the coast, he saw no reason why they should not act like human beings.

They still put up the small tent for Fortune, but the rest of them slept upon the sand, under the stars. Once, George awoke as the dawn was gliding the east. Silhouetted against the sky he saw Fortune. She was standing straight, her hands pressed at her sides, her head tilted back—a tense attitude. He did not know it, but she was asking God why these things should be. He threw off his blanket and ran to her.

"Fortune, you mustn't do that. You will catch cold."

"I cannot sleep," she said simply. He took her by the hand and led her to the tent. "Try," he said. Then he did something he had never done before to any woman save his mother. He kissed her hand, turned quickly, and went over to his blanket. She remained motionless before the tent. The hand fascinated her. From the hand her gaze traveled to the man settling himself comfortably under his blanket. . . . Pity, pity! that was ever to be her portion; pity!

In Damascus the trio presented themselves at the one decent hotel, and but for Ackermann's charges upon the manager, it is doubtful if he would have accepted them as guests; for a more suspicious-looking trio he had never set eyes upon. (A hotel man weighs a person by the quality of his clothes.) Moreover, they carried no luggage. Ackermann went sponsor; and knowing something of the integrity of the rug-hunter, the manager surrendered. And when George presented his letter of credit at the Imperial Ottoman Bank, again it was Ackermann who vouched for him. It had been agreed to say nothing of the character of their adventure. None of them wanted to be followed by curious eyes.

With a handful of British gold in his pocket, George faced the future hopefully. He took his companions in and about town, hunting the shops for clothing, which after various difficulties they succeeded in finding. It was ill-fitting and cheap, but it would serve till they reached Alexandria or Naples. "How are you fixed?" asked Ryann, gloomily surveying George's shabby cotton-wool suit.

"Cash in hand?"
"Yes."
"About four hundred pounds. At Naples I can cable. Do you want any?"

"Would you mind advancing me

two months' salary?"

"Ryann, do you really mean to stick to that proposition?"

"It's on my mind just now."

"Well, we'll go back to the bank and I'll draw a hundred pounds for you. You can pay your own expenses as we go. But what are we going to do in regard to Fortune?"

"See that she gets safely back to Mentone."

"Suppose she will not go there?"

"It's up to you, Percival; it's all up to you. You're the gay Lochinvar from the west. I'm not sure—no one ever is regarding a woman—but I think she'll listen to you. She wouldn't give an ear to a scallawag like me. This caravan business has put me outside the pale. I've lost caste."

"Ryann, Do You Really Mean to Stick to That Proposition?"

"You're only desperate and discouraged; you can pull up straight."

"Much obliged!"

"You haven't looked at life normally; that's what the matter is."

"Solon, you're right. There's that poor devil back in Bagdad. I've killed a man, Percival. It doesn't mix well in my dreams."

"You said that it was in self-defense."

"And God knows it was. But if I hadn't gone after that damned rug, he'd have been alive today. Oh, damn it all; let's go back to the hotel and order that club-steak, or the best imitation they have. I'm going to have a pint of wine. I'm as dull as a ditch in a paddy-field."

"A bottle or two will not hurt any of us. We'll ask Ackermann. For God knows where we'd have been today but for him. And let him do all the yarning. It will please him."

"And while he gabs, we'll get the best of the steak and wine!" For the first time in days Ryann's laughter had a bit of the erstwhile rollicking tone.

The dinner was an event. No delicacy (mostly canned) was overlooked. The manager, as he heard the guinea fowl in George's pocket, was filled with shame; not over his original doubts, but relative to his lack of perception. The tourists who sat at the other tables were scandalized at the popping of champagne-corks. Sanctimonious faces glared reproach. A jovial spirit in the Holy Land was an anachronism, not to be tolerated. And wine! Horrible! Doubtless, when they retired to their native back-porches, they retold with never-ending horror of having witnessed such a scene and having heard such laughter upon the sacred soil.

Even Fortune laughed, though Ryann's ear, keenest then, detected the vague note of hysteria. If the meat was tough, the potatoes greasy, the vegetables flavorless, the wine flat, none of them appeared to be aware of it. If Ackermann could talk he could also eat; and the clatter of forks and knives was the theme rather than the variation to the symphony.

George felt himself drawn deeper and deeper into those tragic waters from which, as in death, there is no return. She was so lonely, so sad and forlorn, that there was as much brother as lover in his sympathy. How patient she had been during all those inconceivable hardships! How brave and steady; and never a murmur! The single glass of wine had brought the color back to her cheek and the sparkle into her eye; yet he was sure that behind this apparent liveliness lay the pitiful desperation of the helpless. He had not spoken again about old Mortimer. He would wait till after he had sent a long cable. Then he would speak and show her the answer, of which he had not a particle of doubt. As matters now stood, he could not tell her that he loved her; his quixotic sense of chivalry was too strong to permit this step, urge as his heart might upon it. She might misinterpret his love as born of pity, and that would be the end of everything. He was con-scient now that Ryann meant nothing to her. Her lack of enthusiasm, whenever Ryann spoke to her in these days; the peculiar horizontality of her lips and brows, whenever Ryann offered a trifling courtesy—all pointed to distrust. George felt a guilty gladness. After all, why shouldn't she distrust Ryann?

George concluded that he must acquire patience. She was far too loyal to run away without first giving him warning. In the event of her refusing Mortimer's roof and protection, he knew what his plans would be. Some one else could do the buying for Mortimer & Jones; his business would be to revolve round this lonely girl, to watch and guard her without her being aware of it. Of what use were riches if he could not put them to whatever use he chose? So he would wait near her, to see that she came and went unmolested, till against that time when she would recognize how futile her efforts were and how wide and high the wall of the world was.

That mother of hers! To his mind it was positively unreal that one so charming and lovely should be at heart strong as the wind and merciless as the sea. His mother had been everything; hers, worse than none, an eternal question. What a drama she had moved about in, without understanding!

George did not possess that easy and adjustable sophistry which made Ryann look upon smuggling as a clever game between two cheats. His point of view coincided with Fortune's; it was thievery, more or less condoned, but the ethics covering it were soundly established. He had come very near being culpable himself. True, he would not have been guilty of smuggling for profit; but none the less he would have tried to cheat the government. His sin had found him out; he had now neither the rug nor his thousand pounds.

All these cogitations passed through his mind, disjointedly, as the dinner progressed toward its end. They bade Ackermann good-by and Godspeed, as he was to leave early for Beirut, upon his way to Smyrna. Fortune went to bed; Ryann sought the billiard-room and knocked about the balls; while George asked the manager if he could send a cable from the hotel. Certainly he could. It took some time to compose the cable to Mortimer; and it required some gold besides. Mortimer must have a fair view of the case; and George presented it, requesting a reply to be sent to Cook's in Naples, where they expected to be within ten days.

"How much will this be?"

"The porter got out his telegraph-book and studied the rates carefully. 'Twelve pounds six, sir.'"

The porter greeted each sovereign with a genuflection, the lowest being the twelfth. George pocketed the receipt and went in search of Ryann.

But that gentleman was no longer in the billiard-room. Indeed, he had gone quietly to the other hotel and written a cable himself, the code of which was not to be found in any book. For a long time he seemed to be in doubt, for he folded and refolded his message half a dozen times before his actions became decisive. He tore it up and threw the scraps upon the floor and hastened into the street, as if away from temptation. He walked fast and indirectly, smoking innumerable cigarettes. He was fighting hard, the evil in him against the good, the chances of the future against the irremediable past. At the end of an hour he returned to the strange hotel. His lips were puffed and bleeding. He had smoked so many cigarettes and had pulled them so impatiently from his mouth, that the dry paper had cracked the delicate skin.

He rewrote his cable and paid for the sending of it. Then he poked about the unfamiliar corridors till he found the dingy bar. He sat down before a peg of whisky, which was followed by many more, each a bit stiffer than its predecessor. At last, when he had had enough to put a normal man's head upon the table or to cover his face with the mask of inanity, Ryann fell into the old habit of talking aloud.

"Horace, old top, what's the use of this? Just like to be good if we could, eh? But they won't let us. We'd grow raving mad in a monastery. We were honest at the time, but we couldn't stand the monotony of watching green olives turn purple upon the silvery bough. Nay, nay!"

He pushed the glass away from him and studied the air-bubbles as they formed, rose to the surface, and were dissipated.

"No matter what the game has been, somehow or other, they've bashed us, and we've lost out."

He emptied the glass and ordered another. He and the bartender were alone.

"After all, love is like money. It's better to live frugally upon the interest than to squander the capital and go bankrupt. And who cares, anyhow?"

He drank once more, dropped a half-sovereign upon the table, and pushed back his chair. His eyes were blood-shot now, and the brown of his skin had become a slaty tint; but he walked steadily enough into the reading-room, where he wrote a short letter. It was not without a perverted sense of humor, for a smile twisted his lips till he had sealed the letter and addressed the envelope to George Percival Algernon Jones. He stuffed it into a pocket and went out whistling "The Heavy Dragoons" from the opera of "Patience."

Before the lighted window of a shop he paused. He swayed a little. From a pocket of his new coat he pulled out a glove. It was gray and small and much wrinkled. From time to time he drew it through his fingers, staring the while at the tawdry trimmers in the shop-window. Finally he looked down at the token. He became very still. A moment passed; then he flung the glove into the gutter, and proceeded to his own hotel. He left the letter with the porter, paid his bill, and went out again into the dark, chill night.

He was now what he had been two months ago, the man who didn't care.

Here is one case of it: E. B. Fisher, barber 116 Hennepin Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills in 1909 when I publicly recommended them I am 'lad to confirm at this time. I know that they are just as represented. I had rheumatic pains through my back and limbs and when I stood in one position for any length of time it was hard for me to move. My kidneys acted irregularly and contained sediment. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros.' Drug store, and they did me so much good that I continued taking them. They made me strong and well. I still used this remedy once in awhile and it keeps my kidneys in good working order."

CIROFICI TURNS STATE'S EVIDENCE

"Dago Frank" Says He Was Member of Rosenthal Murder Party.

"WHITEY" LEWIS IS ARRESTED

Hart Admits Visiting Much Wanted Man—One Killing Each Day Occurred in New York During Month of July.

New York, Aug. 2.—"Dago Frank" Cirofici, described by three witnesses as one of the men who fired the shots which killed Herman Rosenthal in front of the Metropolitan hotel on the night of July 16, broke down and turned state's evidence.

The prisoner had been depending on an alibi. He had arranged to show that, while the Rosenthal murder was being carried out, he was in a saloon in Harlem trying to get bond for Rosie Harris, a woman of the underworld, who had been arrested. Commissioner Dougherty and Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss tore Cirofici's alibi to shreds. The gun man broke down, began to cry and then burst forth:

"I was in the murder party; I was one of the men hired to kill Rosenthal, but I did not fire a shot.

"The shooting," he went on, "was done either by 'Lefty' Louie or by 'Whitey' Lewis. Four men were in the party, but one of the two of them was the only man who pulled a trigger."

"Whitey" Lewis Captured.

The one other important thing accomplished was the capture of Frank Muller, alias "Whitey" Lewis, one of the four Zelig gangsters and gun men charged with having fired the shots which ended the gambler's life. He was arrested at Fleischmanns, N. Y., and carried in an automobile to Kingston, from whence he was brought to New York early this morning. This is the second of the men who are alleged to have fired the bullets into Rosenthal's body to be captured, the first being "Dago Frank." The two men still at large are "Lefty" Louie and "Gyp the Blood," who are reported to have been seen in company with "Whitey" Lewis during the past twenty-four hours and are believed still to be in the neighborhood where he was arrested.

Following fast on the confession of Cirofici, though not directly connected with it, John W. Hart, attorney for Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, accused of the murder of Rosenthal, was brought before Judge Mulqueen and ordered to answer questions propounded to him by District Attorney Whitman before the grand jury.

Hart Visited "Jack" Rose.

Hart admitted that he had visited "Jack" Rose, one of the men who has confessed, while the latter was in hiding following the gambler's murder. Hart went as the messenger of Lieutenant Becker. He visited Rose, he said, in an effort to secure an affidavit concerning the $1,500 which Rosenthal claimed he had secured from Becker on a mortgage and another affidavit concerning Rosenthal's charge that Becker had demanded and received 20 per cent. of the profits of Rosenthal's gambling house. At the time he secured these affidavits, Hart declares, he did not know that Rose was accused of complicity in the murder.

Hart's testimony, combined with that of "Dago Frank," puts the crux of the case directly up to the accused Becker.

"Dago Frank's" testimony explicitly states that the money for the killing was paid over by Sam Schepps, who is the man named by "Jack" Rose and "Bridge" Webber as Becker's agent in the matter.

SLAYER TELLS OF THREATS

Thomas H. Sheridan on Stand in Vienna Murder Trial Says Victim Made Threats Against His Life.

Vienna, Aug. 5.—Thomas H. Sheridan, former state's attorney for Johnson county, charged with the killing of Harry Thacker here in 1910, took the stand in his own defense and told of having been repeatedly told by friends of threats said to have been made against him by Thacker. These threats, it is said, were made because of articles and editorials in Sheridan's newspaper.

Sheridan told of being accosted by Thacker several weeks before the shooting, and said that Thacker on that occasion threatened to whip him. He testified he walked away from Thacker to avoid trouble. Sheridan told of finding written threats under his door and that once he heard the door open and looked out to see Thacker, who commanded him to get his head inside.

On the day of the shooting, Sheridan said, Thacker attacked him as he started upstairs to his office, and that, being weak from a recent illness and believing Thacker to have a weapon, he took a revolver from his own coat pocket and fired one shot.

Mules to Race at Fair.
Springfield, Aug. 2.—Missouri mules, the kind that made the state famous, will compete in races at the Illinois State fair.

John L. Pickering, press representative of the state board of agriculture, returned from Terre Haute, Ind., where he viewed the monoplane to be used by the Johnson brothers at the exposition. New features for the aviation meet have been announced. Perhaps one of the most interesting will be the race between a monoplane, a biplane and an automobile on the closing day, which has been designated as automobile day.

The annual automobile tour to the fair will be carried out this year, probably with a larger entry list than before. A large number of automobile owners from various parts of the state have signified their intention of driving to Springfield.

$1,250,000 MEMORIAL

Congressman Pou Introduces Lincoln-Lee-Grant Bill.

Would Erect Arch in Washington to Which All States of Union Could Contribute.

Washington, Aug. 2.—The construction of a Lincoln-Lee-Grant memorial in Washington at an expense of $1,250,000 is proposed in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Pou of North Carolina. It would appropriate $250,000 for the erection of a statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee directly opposite the statue now being erected to the memory of ex-President Grant.

An appropriation of $1,000,000 is proposed for the erection of an arch over Pennsylvania avenue, connecting the base of the Grant statue with the base of the Lee statue. The arch would be known as the Lincoln peace memorial arch and every state of the Union would be invited to furnish material to be used in its construction.

Material furnished by the states would bear in inscription agreed upon by the members of a commission to have supervision over the construction, which would consist of the secretary of war, Gen. Bennett H. Young, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, and Gen. Harvey M. Trimble, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. The Grant statue is directly west of the capitol in the botanical garden.

Another Lincoln memorial was proposed in the house by Representative Taylor of Colorado, who introduced a bill to have the federal government construct a national highway from Boston to San Francisco by way of New York, Washington, Springfield, Ill., and Denver.
